Bees and Wasps

Many people think that bees and wasps simply buzz a lot and sting, but they are actually some of the most intelligent insects around.

Bumblebees and honeybees live in large colonies, working together as a group. Worker bees spend much of their lives gathering nectar from plants, which they turn into honey.

Bee societies have three classes within their colony. Each bee colony has a queen who lays up to 100 eggs a day. In each colony there are very few male bees called drones. The majority of the bees in a colony are workers and all females. Their job is to collect the nectar.

A honeybee’s home is like a small city made of wax produced by the bees, in cell shapes. This is called a honeycomb. Some cells hold baby larva and some hold honey.

There are many different families of wasps. Most adults have a narrow waist between their second and third segments and large eyes.

Many wasps do not live in groups, but prefer to live alone. They are called solitary wasps. They are mostly parasitic, laying their eggs on other insects. Wasps that live in groups are called social wasps. These build large nests made out of dead wood that they chew into paper.

Wasps and bees have yellow and black stripes that warn people they are venomous. They only sting when they feel threatened or they are defending their home.

Now, listen carefully to the exercises related to passage:

Number 1: Put a tick (✓) if the sentence is correct or a cross (✗) if it is not. The first one is done for you as an example.

a. Many people think that all that wasps do is buzz and sting. This statement is correct, so I did a tick next to the sentence. Now write a tick if the sentence is correct or a cross if it is not correct for the following sentences.

b. Bees and wasps are very intelligent.

c. Bumblebees live on their own.

d. The three classes within a bee society are the queen, the drones and the workers.

e. A honeybee lives in a house called cell.

f. In each colony there are a lot of male bees.

g. The job of a worker in a colony is to collect nectar.

h. The workers in a colony are males and females.

i. Most adult wasps have a narrow waist.

Number 2: Match Column A with Column B to make correct sentences. The first one is done for you as an example.

a. Bees and wasps This matches with “buzz and sting” so I put ‘a’ next to it in Column B. The whole sentence now reads “Bees and wasps buzz and sting.” Now I’ll read the rest of Column A and then Column B. You write the letters in Column B.

b. Bumblebees gather nectar

c. A queen

d. A honeybee’s home

e. The baby larva stay

f. Wasps have

g. Most wasps

h. Social wasps

i. Wasps only sting

Column B: lays up to 100 eggs a day. / large eyes. / buzz and sting. / which they turn to honey. / is called a honeycomb. / live on their own. / when they feel threatened. / in cells. / are wasps that live in groups.
Number 3: Fill in with ONE word from the passage.

a. Apart from larva, some honeycomb cells hold ___________.

b. There are many different ___________ of wasps.

c. Most wasps lay their eggs on other ___________.

d. Wasps’ nests are made out of dead ___________.

END OF THE LISTENING COMPREHENSION
Look at the information about DOGS (6 marks)

Dogs were wild animals but over 10,000 years ago, people in the Middle East started to realize dogs' great potential in guarding and hunting. So they tried to make dogs as pets. This can be seen from ancient cave paintings which often shows dogs assisting men during hunting. Today there are over 200 million dogs being kept as pets with North America having the largest share.

The dog is not a pure carnivore. It eats fruits, vegetables as well as meat and should be considered an omnivore. Its internal organs are similar to those of humans although externally both species look very different. The body of a dog basically provides strength and speed. The paws have pads which act as shock absorbers when they run or leap.

Dogs have excellent sense of smell because their noses have long smelling membranes. Their sense of hearing is also much better than human beings. They are able to swivel their ears so as to focus on the source of the sound. However, they do not see things in colour but in black, white and shades of grey.

The average life span of a dog is twelve years. The first year is equal to fifteen human years, the second is nine and thereafter, each dog year is four human years. This means dogs age much faster and live the equivalent of about sixty-four human years.

A. Fill in each blank space with ONE word from the text. (1 mark each)

1. Dogs were made pets to help humans in guarding and ____________.

2. Dogs can eat both meat and vegetables so it is an ____________.

3. Long membranes in their noses help dogs to have a special sense of ____________.

4. Some ____________ paintings show dogs helping men in hunting.

5. Their sense of sight is not very good and they see only in ____________ , ____________ and shades of grey.
There are lots of traditional stories about Anansi, the spider. Here is part of a Jamaican story about Anansi and Kling Kling, a bird. Anansi and Kling Kling have had an argument.

For a long time Anansi tried to catch Kling Kling. They were friends no longer. Anansi set traps and hid them in the grass near the berries on which Kling Kling loved to feed. He made the twigs from the woods into long, slippery nooses and hid them where Kling Kling liked to walk. But it was no use. Kling Kling was too clever. He saw all the traps and avoided them. Sometimes he would hide in the top of a tree and, without a sound, watch Anansi set a trap. Then when it was all done he would suddenly cry out “Why?” and fly away, leaving Anansi puzzled and angry. (Paragraph 1)

At last Anansi went to his friend, Tiger, and said, “I beg you, Mr Tiger, help me to catch that old Kling Kling bird. He flew away, and I cannot catch him at all.”

“And what will you give me if I help you catch him?” asked Tiger.

“Oh, my sweet Tiger,” said Anansi, “I will give you a cow.”

“A whole cow?” asked Tiger, who was very greedy and very fond of cow. (Paragraph 2)

“A whole cow, Mr Tiger, I promise,” said Anansi. So Tiger thought and thought for a long time and at last he said, “I tell you what we will do, Anansi. I will lie down in the house and pretend to be dead. You must take a bell and walk all round the town calling out at the top of your voice, ‘The great King Tiger is dead; the great King Tiger is dead.’ Then all the people will come to the funeral, and you can catch him.” (Paragraph 3)

ANANSI (continued)

Now the next day was a great market day. Kling Kling went to the market and bought peas and rice and codfish and plantain and sweet potato. While he was buying the sweet potatoes he heard a bell ringing, and he asked the people what it was. “Ah,” said a stout market-woman, “the great King Tiger is dead.” (paragraph 4)

“What?!! You mean that Tiger, the great Tiger, is dead?” asked Kling Kling.

“Yes,” said the people standing round. “Yes, what she says is true. The great King Tiger is dead.”

“And when did he die?” asked Kling Kling.

“Yesterday just before twelve o’clock.” (paragraph 5)

“Then,” cried Kling Kling, “I must hurry away to put on my second-best coat and go to the funeral.” Kling Kling rushed home and put on his second-best two-tailed blue coat and his shoes that were so new that they cried out “quee-quee” when he walked in them. When he had finished dressing Kling Kling went to Tiger’s house. When he got there he saw a great crowd of people outside, and he shook his head and said, “So the great King Tiger is dead!” (paragraph 6)

“Yes,” they replied. “The great King Tiger is dead.”

“When did he die?”

“Yesterday, just before twelve,” they replied.

“What killed him? Was it fever? Was it an accident? How did he die?”

“The heat of the weather killed him,” they said.

“And has he laughed at all since he died?” asked Kling Kling.

“No.”

“Then he isn’t dead at all,” said Kling Kling. “Don’t you know that a man is not dead until he laughs a big last laugh?” (paragraph 7)

Tiger was in the nearest room, listening at the window. When he heard what Kling Kling said he broke out into a great laugh that shook the house, and Kling Kling said, “Ha-ha, I never yet heard a dead man laugh!” and he flew away. So Tiger never got the cow. (paragraph 8)
